- What I noticed is a little bit of a difference in the font size. In Safari the fonts seem to be a little bit bigger and bolder, while in Chrome the font seems to be much smaller and not as bold as it is presented in Safari.
- The other difference I see is the favicon not showing up in Safari while it does for Chrome.
- Another difference I see is the colors in Safari seem to be more vibrant than the colors in Chrome.
- In the Contact Page the difference between the borders in the form are pretty clear. We can see the State dropdown list border is much bolder but a little bit smaller than the one in Chrome and even the arrows are different. In Safari, it shows you an arrow for the zip code and phone to autofill those sections with the contact information you already have stored in your computer or iCloud while in Chrome that is not the case. The comments field section also has a much thicker and bolder border than the one at Chrome but it is the opposite for the rest of the fields.
- One last difference I noticed is when you hover over the fields, the border radius is almost not existing for Safari and it is less thicker than the border in Chrome.
